BIG WHEEL RYAN RUINS HIS KISSER!

New plastic surgery disaster horrifies game show execs

CONCEITED Ryan Seacrest has destroyed his pretty boy looks with a Botox bender, facelift, eye jobs and other cosmetic surgery procedures in a boneheaded bid to be camera-ready for his upcoming Wheel of Fortune gig, sources dish.

But tipsters say the 49-year-old heir to outgoing game show host Pat Sajak is now freakishly unrecognizable, leaving TV execs worried they backed the wrong horse — and should've given the job to gorgeous letter-turner Vanna White, 66.

"Ryan's terrified of getting older and looking older," an insider explains.

Ryan reportedly wanted to be camera-ready for his new gig

Rockin' Eve broadcast have accused him of mangling his mug in a foolish effort to turn back time!

"Ryan Seacrest needs to slow down on plastic surgery. His face is very uncanny valley," hisses one catty commentator.

The insider sniffs, "When the fans start noticing, it's never good! But Ryan is exceedingly vain — even for a TV personality."

Dr. Nicholas Jones, an Atlanta-based cosmetic surgeon, believes the emcee indulged in a massive makeover — including a facelift, neck lift and blepharoplasty to remove excess skin from his eyelids!

"He's had Botox in his forehead and his eyelids, and he's also had some filler as well," Jones observes. "I also suspect he took the weight-loss drug Ozempic."

Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Dr. Robert H. Cohen is also convinced Kelly Ripa's former TV sidekick may have helped himself to "a light sprinkling of Botox."

New York cosmetic surgery specialist Dr. Yoel Shahar points out Seacrest's eyebrows are "much higher than before," which suggests they were lifted.

Shahar also believes the image-conscious star had upper and lower eyelid surgery and under-eye filler and "definitely" underwent a skin-smoothing neck lift — "with the incision behind the ear."

The insider says Ryan is "doubling down on fighting the aging process," but "people are telling him to stop punishing himself!"

The doctors quoted in this article have not treated Ryan Seacrest.
